TUESDAY CLUB DUES TO INCREASE

Amendment Is Submitted to Meeting and Meets General Approval

JOHN BRALY SPEAKS

Subscriptions to Clubhouse Fund Reach Sum of $718

At the meeting of the Tuesday Afternoon club this week, which was addressed by John Hyde Braly on the theme "Pioneers," the audience received a most interesting view in retrospection of the development of our country during the life of this unusual man, who first saw the light of day in 1835.

His tales of pioneer days were confined to two, one describing the thrilling passage of the Green river while crossing the plains, when all the oxen in the party were yoked together, and all the wagons likewise united. Had the staunch and intelligent bovine leaders, "Duke" and "Berry," guided by Mr. Braly's 14-year-old son, failed to make the only available landing, the entire party would have been swept down the swift stream, and would probably have perished.

The other incident was an account of the only race in which Mr. Braly ever participated, when his two-year-old steer, "Polk," which had been trained to carry him in a saddle, was matched against Jim Allen's fast mule, at Fremont, Cal. It was a picturesque scene as he vividly portrayed it, and gave the club members an appetite for more, which Mr. Braly has promised to give them in the new clubhouse.

On account of the many annual reports, the time left for the program was brief.

Mrs. A. M. Williams submitted a report of receipts from the yellow cards soliciting subscriptions to the clubhouse fund, totaling $718, with a prospect that the amount would be increased to $1000.

Announcement was made of the annual club luncheon and final meeting of the club, next Tuesday, for which a wonderful menu has been planned.

Mrs. C. H. Hutchinson, retiring president, called Mrs. A. M. Williams, first vice president, to the chair, and read her annual report, which is published in another column.

As chairman of ways and means, Mrs. Williams gave an account of the means by which the club has filled its treasury—a wonderful tale of money-making activity and clever finance.

Mrs. Mabel Ocker, second vice president and chairman of programs, showed that the club had enjoyed fine programs, in variety, at an average cost of 5½ cents per capita, or an expenditure of $589 of the $600 appropriated, leaving $11 in the program treasury.

Brief reports were made by Dr. Jessie Russell, chairman of publicity; Mrs. Mabel Rudy, corresponding secretary, the report being read by Mrs. Charles Houston; Mrs. A. M. Hunt, treasurer; Mrs. Colin Cable, chairman of section programs; Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, chairman of social afternoons; Mrs. Charles Temple, courtesy chairman; Mrs. L. W. Sinclair, chairman of hospitality, read by Mrs. Warren Roberts; Mrs. R. D. Angelica, chairman of decorations; Mrs. Stephen Packer, chairman of calling; Mrs. J. G. Huntley, chairman of remembrance; Mrs. A. T. Spaulding, chairman of philanthropy; Mrs. C. S. Archer, chairman of local relief; Miss Ida Myers, chairman of patriotism; Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, federation secretary.

As the speaker was present, the club voted to ask other chairmen to submit reports in writing to the secretary for filing.

The chief business outside of the reception of reports was the announcement of Mrs. John Robert White of a proposed amendment to the constitution in increase club dues from $6 to $10 per annum. Under a suspension of rules, which can be brought about by the petition of nine members, this will be voted upon at the next and final meeting of the club, Tuesday, when the annual luncheon will be enjoyed.

Mrs. Daniel Campbell, president-elect, endorsed the proposed amendment, explaining that the new clubhouse will put the organization in rank with the Ebell, Friday Morning and other big clubs, and it will be necessary to spend more money for programs if the club is to keep abreast of the times and live up to its opportunities and environment. In view of the generous financial backing it is receiving in the loans it is raising through Mr. Brand and other business men, members should feel pride enough in their institution to make its income sufficient to meet its reasonable expenses, with a little surplus, to be applied on the principal of the indebtedness, she argued.

The sentiment expressed after the meeting indicates there is little likelihood of opposition to the amendment.

James W. Foley Doubts We'll Get That Martian Message

Perhaps there are folks on Mars with whom we will some time in the future be able to communicate, but James W. Foley, in The Listening Post this evening says: "Frankly, we doubt that we shall for a long time know definitely about Martians." The Listening Post is particularly interesting because all of use are awaiting with interest the report on the message which Marconi expects to receive by radio.

The old-fashioned notion that criminals belong behind prison bars still persists, according to Henry James, who in his comment on the day's news treats with the position and attitude of Eugene Debs in his story of his life behind the bars. "The problem he thinks to have solved still awaits solution," declares Mr. James.

"Nothing Frightens Man So Much As Nothing," is the startling title heading the daily scientific article now appearing on the editorial page. The concluding paragraph of the article on the planets declares "man hates to be alone in the dark, so he seeks for a friendly face in every conceivable quarter of the universe."

Able editorials this evening deal with the Ku Klux Klan, German monarchists, marriage over the border and the sane Fourth. The editorial page is concluded with the other daily features including those by Della E. Stewart, Dr. Frank Crane and John Pilgrim.

C. OF C. ASKED TO AID HOLLYWOOD

Carmen Production Co. Wishes to Secure Support Here

The directors of the chamber of commerce are planning to secure a section of reserved seats for the performance of the opera, "Carmen" to be staged at the Hollywood Bowl on July 8. This section of seats will be sold to Glendalians and the entire delegation attend the opera in a body.

Mr. Lavonie, representing the Carmen Production company, spoke at the meeting of the board yesterday regarding this production. He told of the plan to bring some of the best musical talent in the United States to Hollywood for the production. This opera will be given only one performance, on the night of July 8.

Internationally famous artists will take part. Margarita Silva will take the part of Carmen. Edward Johnston and Henry Scott are two other famous members of the cast. The Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra will play and there will be a ballet of 100 dancers in addition to numerous extras.

This production will be staged as a community proposition. The Carmen Production company has agreed to make several improvements at the bowl and to install 35,000 permanent seats, which will, after the performance, become the property of the Hollywood Bowl.

On the day before the opera Hollywood will stage a Spanish fiesta. All of the merchants have agreed to decorate their stores in Spanish style and offer, wherever possible, Spanish merchandise for sale. The motion picture actors and actresses of Hollywood are also going to cooperate in the matter of creating a Spanish atmosphere.

There will be a rodeo held on the day preceding the opera. This will be free, as will the street dances on the same night.

Three bands have been secured and will be stationed in three different sections of the city, where the streets will be roped off for dancing.

The directors were asked to cooperate in any way they saw fit. After Mr. Lavonie's address the matter was discussed and it was decided to turn the entire matter over to the civics committee for investigation. This committee is to investigate the securing of seats and report to the directors at the next meeting.

YEARNED TO SEE THE BIG WORLD

Little Dorothy Jouanneau, aged 14, ran away from her home yesterday morning. She wanted to see the world and she took this method of accomplishing that end. However, toward evening she was located in a vacant house near 3937 Rivera avenue in Los Angeles by Officer Collins of the Glendale police force.

Greatly disappointed, Miss Dorothy was returned to the home of her sister on Seneca avenue, Los Angeles.

FIREWORKS ANNOY HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Boys living in the region of the Glendale Research hospital are disturbing the patients in that institution by shooting fireworks contrary to an ordinance of the city. In the complaint made by the hospital people it is claimed that the youngsters fire these crackers at an early hour in the morning and in late evening. Officer McGuire has been detailed to see that this nuisance is stopped.

THOUSANDS ARE DONATED FOR MISSION

Restoration of Historic Buildings at S. Fernando Proves Popular

Glendale was represented at the dinner last evening at the San Fernando mission by Director D. L. Gregg, of the chamber of commerce; Mrs. Gregg, Assistant Secretary E. F. Sanders, and Mrs. Sanders.

The dinner was given under the auspices of the associated chambers of commerce of the San Fernando valley, in the interests of the restoration of San Fernando mission.

There were more than 300 people present. Interesting addresses were given. The speaker of the evening was Senator Del Valle, who spoke on the restoration of Southern California's missions.

A collection was taken after the dinner, and several thousand dollars subscribed. This money will be turned over to the Landmark club, organized by John Steven McGroarty, for the restoration of the famous landmarks of the Southland.

PROGRESSIVE CLUB IS ENTERTAINED BY HARROWER

Delightful Program Given in Social Hour in Laboratory

About 20 members of the Progressive Business club, together with their families and friends, were guests Tuesday evening of Dr. Henry R. Harrower and his associates at the Harrower laboratory on East Broadway, at the social hour.

A very delightful program, consisting of the following numbers, was given: Radio, by Henry L. Transtrom; reading by Miss Anderson; "Across South America on Foot," by Mr. Kreutzenstein; piano solo by Miss Brockway; reading by Miss Cunningham; vocal solo by Dr. Harrower, and a reading by Mrs. Harrower.

The surprise of evening and one of the most enjoyable features of the program was a musical selection by "The Horn-Rimmed Spectacle club," composed of six lady employes. This club was under the efficient leadership of Mrs. V. Ackerman, and was accompanied by a mouth-organ obligato, by T. S. Culhane.

EAST GLENDALE SCHEDULE MEETING

The regular weekly luncheon of the East Glendale Advancement association will be held tomorrow noon at the Broadway inn, corner Broadway and Glendale avenue. A number of very important items of interest will be discussed at this session. The price of the luncheon will be 50 cents.

Sowing the Whirlwind

The unspoken anxiety for the welfare of the youth of Glendale, given voice in our editorial of Friday, is revealing itself daily in communications.

That the earnest parents of the city are awakening to conditions surrounding their children, is indicated by the unfolding of confidences that will ultimately lead to united action, the organization of a restraining force among the parents of the city, for reciprocal protection of the young folks.

If Mr. A. refuses to permit his son to use his automobile at night, and Mrs. B. restrains her daughter's free hours, there will be a return to the normal.

If parents, themselves, pay more attention to their obligations—recognize there are obligations upon every couple that bring forth a child, the strengthening of the moral fiber of the household is assured against the hour of temptation.

In these days the churches are social centers; there are merry hours in the circles that radiate out from Glendale churches. Clean merriment, clean associations, that among the young may well yield to mutual respect which in itself builds character.

If these be arguments that do not appeal, there are others. There is the horrible record of the cold-blooded medical United States army physicians compiled from examinations of the men, young men, remember, entering the army.

These young men were boys and girls such as the young folks of Glendale. Children such as your boys are today.

The statistics can be secured easily from the government. They do not require the interpretation of a preacher or of a newspaper.

They place plainly before the land the one cleansing fact of the world:

Sowing of wild oats in youth is self-murder that exacts the last drop of agony from writhing young men and women of the nation, just at the time of life when maturity of vision opens to them the high vision of activity—and barring them as stricken, it hounds them to early extinction.

Guard your children, lest one day they rise up and curse you for that which they may thank you for now—a day, unrestrained, in the canyons.

That others are thinking and hoping that the parents of Glendale may awaken is shown by the following, received from the Rev. Charles M. Calderwood, pastor of the First Congregational church. It is as follows:

My Dear Editor:

I want to thank you for your timely editorial in Friday's Press on "Sowing the Whirlwind." Much first-hand information convinces me that an attitude of indifference to high moral standards is quite common among many young people and that this condition obtains in Glendale. Anyone doubting this can get sufficient evidence upon inquiry and observation to convince them that the condition is alarming. Some not only "sow the wind," but, as you say, are "Sowing the Whirlwind."

You are right in placing the responsibility where you do. We have good schools in Glendale, but the schools cannot teach all the moral lessons that children should learn. The schools are not responsible for the promiscuous use of automobiles nor for midnight moral dereliction. We have a good police force, but they can neither teach nor watch all the young people of the city. The parents have a responsibility that they cannot shift to either the schools or the police. Parents who are indifferent and who shut their eyes to manifest evils will reap the whirlwind as well as their children.

Give us some more of those good editorials. Many of our good people are more interested in a good city than in a large city.

Very truly,
CHARLES M. CALDERWOOD.

MISS BARTON WINS SPEED MEDAL FOR TYPING

Heads Commercial Dept. With Record of 43 Words Per Minute

Underwood bronze medals for proficiency in typing have just been bestowed upon several students in the commercial department of Glendale High under a 15-minute test, viz.: Ethel Barton, who was credited with 43 words per minute; Dorothy McGinnis, 40 words; Hilda Foote, 42 words. Mrs. Ballard states that nearly every student who has been faithful in attendance since last September, has now received an award for proficiency.

She wonders that a larger proportion of the students do not take the course for the help it will be to them personally in their school work, particularly if they expect to go to college, where all their theses must be typewritten. When this work must all be paid for, it becomes tolerably expensive.

INVITATION DAY TO BE MARKED

The directors of the chamber of commerce yesterday voted to cooperate with Gov. W. D. Stephens in making Wednesday, October 11, proclaimed California invitation day, a success.

A proclamation declaring this day set aside for the purpose of all Californians writing a letter to friends and relatives in the East inviting them to move to this state was read.

Director Huntley moved that the Glendale chamber cooperate and when the proper time arrives prepare a form letter, if necessary, to be used by the members in extending California's invitation to the East.

MRS. MOYSE GOES TO PLACEMENT BUREAU MEETING

University Club Conference Decides to Begin With Placing Women

Mrs. George U. Moyse found the meeting of the advisory committee of the county vocational and placement bureau at the University club exceedingly interesting. It was a small gathering, but big in its personnel, with Dr. Von Klein-Smid present, Mr. Bishop of the Bishop company, the presidents of the Friday Morning and University clubs, Mr. Heltner, personnel director of the Goodrich rubber company, Dr. Millbank Johnson, and others. Dr. Stonier of the Southern Branch, University of California, spoke, as did also Miss Hausem and Mrs. Moyse.

The aim of the meeting was to secure the endorsement of the advisory committee of the movement to make the placement bureau a county unit and clearing house for all vocational and guidance committees in the different parts of the county.

At the present time it is undertaking to place only professional and business women, and the first effort will be to begin a survey of the business opportunities for women in Los Angeles city and suburban towns. While this survey is going on it "continues to carry traffic" as the railroad slang goes, that is—its placement work will not stop.

The meeting was held in the University Women's clubroom in the Brack shops.

AUTO BREAKS THROUGH LOS FELIZ BRIDGE

Thomas Thorkelson, Operator of L. A., Falls Fifteen Feet

HE ESCAPES DEATH

Car Rolls Over and Is Badly Damaged in River Bottom

An automobile driven by Thomas Thorkelson of Los Angeles crashed through the railing of the Los Feliz bridge late yesterday afternoon, falling to the river bed, about fifteen feet below, and pinning the operator beneath the wreckage. The car was badly damaged, and after Thorkelson had been extricated from the car, he was found to be only slightly injured.

Immediately after the accident, a report was sent to the Glendale police department, Officer Anderson responding. When he arrived on the scene, Anderson found Officer Nunn already on the job. After Thorkelson had been removed from the wreckage he was taken to his home in Los Angeles and the machine was removed from the river-bed by the All Night and Day garage of this city.

GLENDALE LODGE TO WORK AT PASADENA

To Be Guests at Hotel Vista del Arroyo During Week

The officers of Glendale lodge, B. P. O. E., were invited on Tuesday evening to be guests of the Pasadena Elks and to put on their initiatory work. The meeting was held at the Hotel Vista del Arroyo. After the business session a splendid program was given and a social evening enjoyed. About 100 attended from Glendale.

A group of 12 girls from the Pasadena telephone office, who have formed a club, gave several ukulele numbers, and Mrs. Neal, an accomplished elocutionist, gave some splendid readings. The Glendale Elks took their band with them, which played several pieces. Herbert Henning and William Bode gave a very clever saxophone and piano duet, which was greatly enjoyed.

The Glendale Elks have invited the lodge at Monrovia to come here next Monday night to put on their initiatory work.

FURAYS RECOVER BRIBE MONEY

Judge Luce of San Diego, sitting yesterday in the superior court, granted Dede Furay and Mark B. Furay judgment for $5550 against Walter Lips, former deputy sheriff, who was convicted of accepting a bribe from Joe Furay, recently convicted for bunkoing a Texas rancher out of $50,000.

According to testimony, which convicted former Deputy Sheriff Lips and his partner, Anderson, the two deputies released Furay from custody after receiving a payment of $7700. Furay was later arrested and convicted on the swindling charge.

Anderson, who was convicted of accepting a bribe, with Deputy Lips, gave back $2150 of the money paid by Furay. He was released from liability in the case by the suing parties.

Dede and Mark B. Furay, who filed the suit resulting in the judgment against Lips, are the wife and son of the convicted swindler. They are well-known here in Glendale, as they lived at 412 Piedmont park for some time, and Mark B. Furay was a student at Glendale high school.

Lips and Anderson are said to have appealed from the judgment in the bribery case.

With the awarding of the judgment against Lips yesterday, Mrs. Furay and her son have regained all the money paid by Joe Furay for his release from custody.

MONROVIA ELKS TO COME HERE

A big night is being planned for Monday night at the Elks' lodge. A delegation from Monrovia lodge will visit Glendale and put on the initiatory work for No. 1289.

After the initiation there will be a feed, and a committee is arranging an extra fine entertainment.

Glands Cause Crime, Says Psychiatrist

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Police chiefs assembled here for the International Police Chiefs' convention today tried to answer the question of "what causes crime."

But the answers were varied.

Glands, just now heralded as the real fountain of youth which Ponce De Leon sought, were blamed by Dr. Eva Charlotte Reid, psychiatrist of the University of California.

But eighteen chiefs, when asked for their answers to the question, differed widely in their opinions.

Dr. Reid declared ductless glands caused most of the nation's crime. The thyroid gland was the chief offender. If it were improperly developed, she said, it permitted those conditions to arise in the human mind and body which furnish the impulse for crime.

"Lack of education and improper training during the years of youth are the things which people our jails," commented Chief J. M. Broughton of Portsmouth, Va.

"Wine, women and song make criminals," he said. "And of the three, women are the most to blame."

NEW PLAN FOR GEAR WORKS IS APPROVED

Enthusiastic Meeting of Subscribers and Officers Is Held

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the chamber of commerce last night to consider the new plan of the proposed Glendale Gear and Machine works, to secure which an effort is being made. J. J. Ferlin, president of the Schnerr Gear works of Fresno, who proposes to move his plant to Glendale and rename it the Glendale Gear and Machine company, was present, and outlined his proposition to those in attendance.

It is proposed to form a company the capitalization of which is to be $300,000. Mr. Ferlin asks that the people of Glendale purchase stock to the extent of $10,000, about half of which, it is understood, was signed for at the meeting. All of those who had subscribed for stock in the company formerly proposed, doubled their subscriptions in the proposed new concern. The plant that Mr. Ferlin proposes to move to Glendale has a conservative estimated value of about $70,000, it is stated.

The proposed company has three locations for its plant under consideration, all of which are located in the industrial section near the Southern Pacific tracks. These range in size from one to five acres, about two acres being necessary for this concern.

If the company is organized as proposed it will, at the start, employ at least 20 men. The committee in charge of boosting this proposition consists of P. J. Hazelton, L. H. Wilson and C. D. Gulick.

C. D. Gulick stated this morning that if this company is organized and the plant constructed, an entirely new form of automobile and truck chassis, invented by himself, will be manufactured, providing satisfactory arrangements can be effected. This is a standardized chassis which can be universally used by all machines.

NEWTON ELECTRIC COMPANY HOLDS CELEBRATION

Beautiful Store Is Crowded With Big Birthday Party

The beautiful store of the J. A. Newton Electric company, "Glendale's foremost electric shop," was the scene of a reception Tuesday night in honor of its twelfth anniversary.

About 1000 friends passed through the store during the evening, and a radio concert from the Kinema theatre was enjoyed. This was followed by music from the Shrine club orchestra, of which Mr. Kelly is director. Mr. Kelly is also head of the J. A. Newton service department. The piano was donated through the courtesy of the Brunswick shoppe.

Many beautiful baskets of flowers were sent in by friends. All during the evening electrical appliances were demonstrated. Strawberry shortcake, toast, chocolate cookies and waffles were served, all being cooked electrically. Refreshing punch was also enjoyed.

This reception was given in appreciation of the kindness and patronage shown the J. A. Newton company in the past 12 years, all of which has helped the firm attain its present success.

GRASS FIRE DAMAGE

A grass fire caused considerable commotion in the region of 501 Patterson avenue at shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

LOS FELIZ ASSESSMENT IS CLEARED

City Engineer Explains the Way Cost Is to Be Spread

PAYS FOR WIDENING

Paving Expense Will Be Levied in the Usual Way

City Engineer Hill cleared up the question which exists in the minds of many property owners living at some distance from Los Feliz road as to why they are being assessed for the improvement of that thoroughfare. Mr. Hill stated that all property other than that facing on Los Feliz road is being assessed to pay only for the widening process and not for the paving of the thoroughfare. This widening work will include the purchase of a strip of land, 10 by 160 feet, on the west side of Los Feliz road between Central avenue and San Fernando road, and also the tearing out of the improvement work along the entire street, between San Fernando road and Glendale avenue. The idea is to eliminate the parkways from this street, thereby increasing the width of the roadway from 32 to 46 feet.

It is only for the purchase of this strip and the tearing out of the present improvement work that the property in the district, other than that facing on Los Feliz, will be taxed. Mr. Hill stated further that the cost to property in the district and not facing on Los Feliz road will not exceed $5 per 50-foot lot.

The assessment district for this work consists of something like 600 lots, and is bounded on the north by a line 150 feet north of Elk street; on the east by a line 170 feet east of Glendale avenue; on the west by a line 400 feet west of Central avenue, and on the south by a line 150 feet south of Laurel street.

Engineer Hill stated this morning that if nothing happened, the widening and improving of Los Feliz road will begin within 60 days, and that it will take between 60 and 90 days to finish the work after it is started.

MYSTERIOUS CAR ELUDES POLICE

Eagle Rock and Local Force Search All Night for Automobile

Several Eagle Rock police officials and Officers Seddon and Kearns of the Glendale police force made unavailing efforts to locate a machine filled with suspicious characters, shortly after midnight last night. The presence of the supposed crooks was reported by the Eagle Rock police, who solicited the aid of the local officers. Several trips up the various streets of the two cities were made, but nothing of the supposed suspicious-looking fellows could be found.

DISTURBED THE PEACE

Ernest Pohland, of El Bonita street, was arrested yesterday afternoon for disturbing the peace, the arrest being made on a complaint of E. J. Jackson, owner of a garage at 1600 South San Fernando road.

ASSEMBLY OF HIGH SCHOOL TO BE REORGANIZED

Roll Room Presidents to Elect Presidents Who Will Form Class Councils

At the assembly held at Glendale High Tuesday morning, Lucy Strother, retiring president, who presided, explained new plans for student government which will be put in operation next year.

Visits to other schools and comparisons of their methods of government by student bodies with that in force in Glendale High, had shown none more efficient than that in force here, she said, except in one thing, it is not representative enough. Glendale High has ten cabinet members, but the student body as a whole does not have representation. To overcome this condition, roll rooms will elect presidents, who will make up a class council.

There will be eight councillors, representing four classes and their divisions "A" and "B." The class council will elect one of its number to represent it in the cabinet. These council members can be recalled by their roll rooms at any time, and in the same way the council members of the cabinet can be recalled.

MRS. MARPLE IS LAID TO REST

Friends Pay Tribute to Kindly Woman and Her High Ideals

Mrs. Fannie E. Marple was laid to rest Tuesday afternoon in the family plot at Forest Lawn Memorial park. Services were first held from the Central Avenue Methodist church, where her friends came to pay her tribute. They filled the church. Rev. V. Hunter Brink was in charge of the services. He was assisted by Rev. Don Ford, former pastor of the church, and Rev. Goodsell, who lead in prayer. They spoke words of kindness from their memory of the Christian life which Mrs. Marple had led, and the never-ending source of joy she had been to all who knew her.

The altar at the church was a bower of beautiful flowers of all varieties, sent by many friends.

Mrs. Marple taught, up to a short time ago, a class of young girls at the church. Her every aim was the betterment of Christianity.

During the service, Mrs. R. L. Wall sang two solos and the church choir sang. Burial took place at Forest Lawn Memorial park, with short service at the grave, in which Mrs. Wall sang a beautiful solo. Rev. Brink read the service there and Rev. Goodsell closed with a prayer.

"TROUBLE" MIRTH AT THE T. D. & L.

The clever star is seen in the role of "Danny," an orphan, who has escaped from the orphanage with his dog "Queenie." The two spent the night sheltered by a shattered barrel, and the next morning they are picked up by the cop on the beat and returned to the orphange.

The matron would not allow "Queenie" to enter the institution, but through Jackie's clever tricks, the dog is admitted and the trouble he causes the lad is pathetic, yet a scream of laughter.

Later the orphanage is pressed very hard financially and is forced to start a campaign through the columns of the newspapers for financial aid. The little city turns out en masse to adopt the youngsters, and much to Jackie's misfortune he is adopted by a very ill-tempered plumber and his kind wife.

The plumber refuses to work until finally Jackie is forced to go out and perform his duties. His first call gets him into a raft of trouble, and he returns to his mother with a five-dollar bill which brings some more trouble, but this trouble is backed up by "they live happy ever after."

No Man Ever Retired On the Money He Spent

An old age of peace and plenty is the goal towards which almost every man aspires.

Yet few ever achieve it, for statistics tell us that at 65, only fifteen out of every hundred men are self-supporting.

There is no sure and fast rule which will bring wealth and success.

But we do know that no man ever retired on the money he spent in the days when his earning powers were at their height.

And we do see about us daily men who are living contentedly on money saved in their earlier years.

Are you saving or spending?

Cantilever Shoe

For Men, Women and Children

Hot Weather Suggestions

If your feet swell and perspire on hot days, causing you discomfort, follow these suggestions of the best physicians and specialists:

Bathe the feet every day in warm water; then let cold water run over them for several minutes. Dry with soft towels; dust with pure talcum. Put on clean stockings every day. And wear the Cantilever Shoe.

You will find great relief in its perfect ease. Natural inner sole line and well-set heel combine to encourage correct posture. With the weight properly distributed, the body relaxes; there is no strain on the arch; walking is no longer an effort.

COOLING FREEDOM

The Cantilever last is patterned from the outline of the foot. There is room for the toes and freedom for the muscles to exercise.

The flexible shank bends with the foot in walking. Ordinary stiff-soled shoes bind the muscles and check circulation, which makes the feet swell. But in Cantilevers muscles and cords grow strong from use, fallen arches are corrected and free circulation keeps the feet comfortable.

Best of all, Cantilevers are good looking.

SENIOR BANQUET RADIATES GOOD FELLOWSHIP

Don Cameron, Class President, Is Toastmaster; Speakers Respond

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

Invested with the radiant happiness of youth and fellowship, which made beautiful the face of every boy and girl guest, the senior banquet and class day program was given at the high school cafe, Tuesday night.

Don Cameron, class president, was toastmaster and voice of the class as a whole and one knew that to him, as to the rest, it was a high moment which would not be repeated. Never again as a full class, might they expect to meet for such a banquet and review the path they had trodden for four years, to count the links which have held them together. Youth, to whom sentiment is always dear, but which is ever too proud to betray itself, held the cup high with song, laughter and story, but one knew the tears were not far away.

For the moment it was happiness enough to be together, and they were ready to take all the world into the golden aura and call it friend. Even the faculty, members, all feuds which may have existed once upon a time forgotten, were hailed by Joyce Evans in her toast to the faculty as loving advisors, who with affectionate persistence had pushed and pulled and sometimes dragged the class to the goal of graduation.

Under the same spell Vice Principal Ferguson responded, telling the class in all sincerity how dear its members are to the staff, how hard it will be to get along without their strong, helpful influence in the school, which has created such harmony between students and "the office." The same note of regret was sounded by Principal Moyse, when he urged the class to a life of "service." said he: "The world is going to need more and more of the same things you have been doing here. You must forget self in helping the other fellow. 'He has friends who is a friend,' and there are bigger things in life than money."

The most gaily brilliant toast of the evening would probably be considered the toast of Virginia Huntley "To the Boys," though she apologized in the beginning, saying she might do better if she had a better subject. "When we first came, said she, you were unwillingly thrust upon us, but we have endeavored to train and make the best of you, and tonight, as we look into your handsome, adoring faces, we feel that our work has not been in vain."

The most serious and eloquent toast of the evening was the farewell of the senior class of 1922, offered by Victor Colburn, who sounded the deeper note of realization of the responsibilities of life and desire to be worthy of the school which has trained the class. The class history, as presented by Paul Hutchinson, was full of many sly allusions which his fellows understood and enjoyed, yet not too, had sentiment between the lines.

George Jordan, who gave the "Forward Look" declared the class must look backward and take stock of the things which have built the characters which will distinguish them in life. His high prediction for the class was: "It will take its victories modestly, its defeats bravely and go on to the greater happiness of service."

Wilfred Cline, who toasted "The Girls" assured them: "We respect your intelligence, admire your beauty and virtue, and tolerate you because we cannot get along without you."

A clever class prophecy and a class will, credited to Clarence Hall, were read by Elizabeth Sternberg and Doris Packer, respectively. The prophecy pictured Donald Taylor as a designer of women's styles, "Spropts" as a tramp actor, Paul Hammond and Chester Vosbrink as constables, Dale Wood and Earl Hammond as anarchist leaders, Paul Hutchinson as a minister, Charlotte Rominger as preceptress of a flapper club and Lucy Strother, Eleanor Sawyer and Virginia Huntley as leaders in a spinster club. The class well bequeathed to the faculty worthy advice and the hope that the lower classes will prove as intelligent and obedient as has the class of '22.

During the diner a program of jazzy piano music was presented by Winifred Parker and Ralph Van Hoorebeke, which received much applause, and later between toasts, Dorothy Peart sang, one of her numbers being the beautiful lyric, "Pal of My Dreams," composed by Virginia Huntley and dedicated to the class. Marjorie Yarick served as accompanist for Dorothy and for Herbert Bruck, who contributed violin solos. She also played for the school songs, in which Don Cameron led the class at the close of the program.

Appreciation was the note sounded by Don at the beginning and the end when he thanked everybody who had in any way contributed to the evening, or to the welfare of the class during its four years at Glendale high, the class teachers being specially mentioned: Normal Hayhurst, Florence Knight and Mona Gardner.

He had no need to call attention to the beautiful service by the decoration committee, Marjorie Yarick, Florence Gower and Mildred Meeker, who had made the plain room beautiful with ropes of fern and great baskets of yellow broom and blue larkspur, suspended from ceiling and wall above the tables, carrying out the class colors of blue and gold.

The debt to Billy Justema and Chester Vosbrink for the artistic place cards was recognized, and the good work done by the program committee, Lucy Strother, Dale Wood and Charlotte Rominger, not to speak of Philips Henderson, who had charge of tickets.

Miss Ellen Hanson, who directed the dinner and has always been the good friend of the class, was called before it to receive thanks and an ovation of applause. The members of the junior cooking class, who served, were not forgotten. They were: Nadine King, Estelle Bradbury, Vera Witcher, Marian Brown, Doris Miles, Ruth Clark, Shirley Fawkes, Sarah Allen, Dorothy Scott, Evelyn Hunt, Wilma Gosser, Ethel Leash, Alice Kreamer, Frances West, Elva Bowen, Helen Robinson, Miss Hargrave, and Ruth Clausson.

A delicious dinner was served at very prettily appointed tables, the "22" of the class featuring the frosting on the French pastry and being frozen into the brick ice cream.

Gorge Jordan sprung a surprise at the end by distributing the "Stylus," making a preliminary speech in which he thanked all who had contributed to its excellence, especially mentioning Miss Abbott, art teacher; Miss Freeman, instructor in literature, and J. Rhea Baker, who had audited the accounts.

Another pleasant surprise was the presentation to Albert Hewitt of the gold "special activity pin," for his service in connection with the electric lighting of the stage and elsewhere for special programs and his general spirit of helpfulness. The presentation was made by Mr. Moyse with words of commendation and appreciation.

The "Big Bunch Glendale Yell," led by Don Cameron, closed the evening.

ST. MARK'S LADIES GIVE PARTY FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Jolly Affair Is Held at Chamber of Commerce Auditorium

The young people and members of the parish of St. Mark's Episcopal church, were entertained Tuesday evening at a jolly affair, given by St. Mark's Guild at the chamber of commerce auditorium.

A short, but interesting program, was given, which consisted of a piano solo by Mrs. Kitt; vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Hunt, accompanied on the piano by Miss Gertrude Champlain. This was followed by dancing, Mrs. Cressey being in charge of the music.

The receiving committee at the door included Mrs. Mortimer Baker, president of the guild; Miss Ellen Williams, Mrs. Wells, and Mrs. B. O. Holbrook. During the evening refreshments were served by caterers from the Glen Inn, with Mrs. Murphy in charge.

The evening was a most enjoyable one and was mainly for the purpose of making the young people of the church better acquainted with one another.

MINNESOTA FOLKS HOLD REUNION

A happy reunion of schoolmates and friends years ago in Aushford, Minn., was held last week in the spacious Terry home at the corner of Windermere and West Hill avenues. The hostess, Mrs. H. L. Among those present were Etta Gerrish Dyar, Ada Beers Snell, Emma Lockman Mann, Eleanor Light Terry, and Messrs. W. E. Snell, Mann, and H. L. Terry.

Truths in Epigram

There can no great smoke arise, but there must be some fire. — Lyly (1553-1601).

Keep thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee. Light gains make heavy purses. 'Tis good to be merry and wise. --Chapman (1557-1634).

A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose to the grindstone.—Franklin (1796-1790).

K. K. K. TO THE BAR

Indictment of a large number of men for participation in a mob scene near Inglewood has been accomplished. This was inevitable. The charge that the disturbance was due to the ku klux klan, that members of that peculiar body planned and conducted it, seemed sustained so far as this could be done by the confession of some of them.

The outcome of the trial may not be important. The very fact that the conduct of the body made a trial necessary is enough to condemn its purposes and methods. It has been revealed as an absurd organization, engaged in destroying the very principles which it is supposed to uphold. To break law on the pretext of upholding law, is a course at which the public could almost afford to laugh, were it not for tragic possibilities. For example, the Inglewood raid resulted in the death of one man.

Ridicule should kill this band so quickly as to deprive the courts of the opportunity to kill it. The idea of a lot of grown-up men parading in sheets and pillowcases, and lighting their way to scenes of violence by the flaming cross they bear aloft, touches the deeps of the grotesque.

Were the laws enforced, the excuse of the ku klux for existing would vanish. And enforcing the laws is bound to make the self-proclaimed reformers vanish through personal application of its rigors to them. A secret organization that prowls at night, and that admits racial prejudice, and draws a religious deadline, is both a nuisance and a menace, for which no place is to be found in the structure of civilization.

GERMAN MONARCHISTS

Intimations are made that late in this month German monarchists plan a demonstration. It is even said that that officers threaten to summon their old regiments to parade in protest against the treaty of Versailles. While it is not probable that the junkers will go this far, that many of them would be glad to do so if they dared, seems reasonable enough to believe.

If the world has placed a proper estimate upon the situation, it is clear enough that the best course of Germany would be to behave itself, and take its medicine. The privilege of making a wry face as the dose goes down is not withheld. Perhaps in the future the volume and bitterness of the draught may be lessened. It will not be lessened, however, if the tramp of armed hosts through the streets of Berlin is heard, for that would accentuate the present fears of France, and tend to tighten a pressure that the conquered realm finds hard to bear now.

Now and then is heard a rumor of intent to restore a Holenzollern to the throne. It hardly is to be supposed that even the junkers entertain so wild an ambition. It would be on parity with the hope of the ex-Empress Zita to place her son on the throne of Austria. These thrones have been overturned They not only are vacant, but wrecked.

MARRIAGE OVER THE BORDER

Perhaps it has seemed that too much ado was being made over the alleged conduct of a film actor. He had received an interlocutory decree of divorce, which is not absolute, and which forbids his marriage until the lapse of a year. Notwithstanding this, almost immediately he is said to have crossed the border into Mexico, and there wedded the woman of his more recent choice. The agitation aroused over this was not due alone to the publicity that centers about the film favorite of the hour. Investigation showed that the instance was typical of a common practice.

Men and women receive interlocutory decrees in the California courts. They know that by the laws of the state remarriage within a year is inhibited. By the simple process of entering Mexico they deem that they have lawfully evaded the restriction. Coming back across the line they assume the ordinary relationships of duly wedded couples. Here is a situation that at least demands attention. If the law as it stands is good law it should be heeded. If it is bad law it should be changed. Good or bad, for the present, it indubitably is the law, and not to be waived at the will of love's young dreamers.

Doubtless the purpose in view when the statute was framed, was to prevent hasty alliances following divorce. A man who has achieved an interlocutory decree, still, however much he may regret it, has a wife. If he comes out of Mexico with another wife, then he is the possessor of two wives. Either this, or the second ceremony is void, in which case the new domestic establishment is left without the moral standing that is deemed essential for the best good of society.

THE SANE FOURTH

At one of the screen studios recently the face of a beautiful woman was marred by a skyrocket. She was there as a spectator. The rocket was defective, and its force was expended backwards. The injury inflicted was severe, and its effects, it is feared, will be permanent.

The skyrocket is one of the usual features of Fourth of July pyrotechnic display. If it operates as designed, it sends a stream of sparks, resembling a comet, into the air, ascending in a graceful arc. When the final explosion occurs far aloft, the sky is streaked with gorgeous balls of fire. Very pretty and expressive, but dangerous. The stick carried by the rocket must obey the laws of nature, and come down. Its return to earth is swift.

Most of the contraptions that come under the head of fireworks are dangerous. Many are deadly. High explosives and virulent poisons enter into the composition of many of them. Even the simple firecracker may put out an eye, or infect the system through a tiny and unnoticed puncture. Besides the constant threat of hurt to individuals, and the shock to the nerves of the timid, the likelihood of burning homes and buildings is worth serious consideration.

Probably there are better forms of expressing patriotic fervor than through the making of noise. This is particularly true when the clamor is a signal for the fire department to be in readiness, the officials at every emergency hospital to be prepared for action, and the certain token that in more than one household there is to be mourning.

From Main Street to Boul' Mich'

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Boul' Mich' is the main thoroughfare of the Latin Quarter of Paris. There is still a steady immigration of youth smitten with artistic aspirations trailing from Main Street to Boul' Mich'.

DR. FRANK CRANE

Most of them are disappointed. The Latin Quarter is there with its great schools and twisted streets and crowded cafes, but the old Quarter of Murger's "Vie de Bohme" and of Maurier's "Trilby" is no more.

The main reason for its disappearance, or rather for the change that has occured, is a very simple and material one.

It is money.

Time was when an impecunious student could live in the region south of the Seine on almost nothing. The war, however, has changed that. Prices have gone up. The Americans have been much to blame for this.

People who earned or got their money in the United States in dollars and spent them in Paris in francs found the capacity of their money more than doubled.

But the trouble is that the Latin Quarter is filled with students from all over Europe, indeed from all over the world, and other countries are not so fortunate financially as America.

The number of Roumanians, Poles, Serbs, Czechs and Russians has fallen off. There are not so many English students as before. The only nationalities whose student force is increased are the Scandinavians, Chinese and the Japanese.

It was this variegated cosmopolitan life that gave the Quarter its charm in the old days, and that charm is fast disappearing.

To be sure, the cafes such as the Rotonde and the Dome are crowded every night, but the crowd has the aspect of being composed of sight-seers. Long hair and baggy velvet trousers and flowing ties are not so often seen.

The "Mimis" and the "Musettes" have a harder and more sordid look. They seem to be sophisticated professionals rather than charming amateurs.

Many of the immigrants from Main street are in a hard case. They haven't money enough to go on with their studying and are compelled to eke out a subsistence by acting as waiters in the restaurant, as supers on the stage, or as members of some restaurant orchestra.

Besides this, the Main street man does not understand the art of economizing, and cannot live on a few biscuits and a glass of beer as the native European.

There is, of course, still charm of freedom and unconventionality in the region and it grips the Main street brother for a while. If he has not considerable moral stamina, however, he is very likely to fall into perversion and there are infinite temptations to bring about the disaster.

There is, of course, a very serious element in the Latin Quarter, men and women students who are working hard at the arts, in medicine and in law. The schools are well patronized.

But for all that the air of the locality is rather one of decay than of liveliness.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

OMITTING "THAT"

(Find the error in this article.)

If an adjective clause is restrictive (serving to identify the antecedent of the relative pronoun), the word that can be omitted. The relative pronoun is then understood.

The above construction is possible, however, only when the omitted that is the object of the following verb or of a preposition; as, the idea (that) you have is not bad; I still have the horse (that) you sold me; the man (that) you were speaking of.

Additional Suggestions

It is preferable to use who, whom, or which when the relative pronoun is at some distance from its accompanying verb; as, this is the train which every one says usually arrives late; there were many persons who, when they realized that there were no seats left, were much disappointed; now that we are ready Smith whom you said some time ago the club had elected secretary was not on hand. This rule is also applicable to a relative pronoun that is placed at some distance from its antecedent; as, the books which, though badly mutilated, I shall accept, and which I shall keep for future reference are on the table in the other room.

When the antecedent is modified by that, the relative pronoun should be who, whom, or which; as, that book which you gave me.

The relative pronoun that never follows a preposition as an object, and this forces the preposition to the end of the clause; as, you have seen the man that I am telling you about; you have seen the man I am talking about.

Yesterday's Error

The right word is accept.

Vocabulary

"But his eyes had lost their wonted brightness . . ." . . . "The Outcast," by Selma Lagerlof.

Wonted: "Commonly used or done; habitual; customary; usual. Made familiar; content, or attached by custom; accustomed; as, the fowls have become wonted to the place."—Standard.

Prenunciation: wunt' ed (u as in but; e as in get).—Standard, Oxford, Webster and Century.

For observation: wont (noun); wont (adjective).

THE LISTENING POST

The press dispatches tell us of the nearness of Mars.

One of our sister planets.

Which soon approaches to within forty millions of miles.

Which may or may not be near, depending on how you look at it.

* * *

Indeed, it is no distance at all.

Because space is immeasurable.

The limited is nothing beside the limitless.

* * *

Mars is an interesting sister planet because we have thought there might be life there.

Our literature has spoken often of "Martians."

As though we recognize their existence.

We have deemed their existence possible because of the fact that Mars moves in the nearest orbit to us about the sun.

And climatic and atmospheric and other conditions may be such as to support some such life as ours.

* * *

And there is no reason there should not be life on Mars or on any other planet.

Not such life as ours.

But the nearer planets may be inhabited with salamanders.

And the outer ones with some creatures fitted to their environment.

Nobody knows.

Who says anything in the domain of existence is impossible?

* * *

Just now we are interested in Mars because the wireless and radio sharks are "listening in."

So it is said.

Hoping to get some signals.

Which leads us to wonder how we would know they were signals from Mars.

What language they would speak.

Whether they would be spirit rappings or voices?

* * *

For if Mars can signal over a distance of forty million miles why not over eighty millions?

Or a hundred millions?

After you have bridged forty million miles what do a few more millions count?

* * *

To have them tell us of their wars and industries and civilization and taxes and movies and jazz and other things.

Provided they could speak to us in intelligible language.

For they must have language.

* * *

And it may be that in the course of years we shall know definitely whether or not there are Martians.

And we may radio through the universe.

Getting bulletins from other planets.

Nobody knows.

Who would have thought a quarter of a century ago that the human voice would bridge a gap of thousands of miles of air?

* * *

Frankly, we doubt that we shall for a long time know definitely about Martians.

But to say that communication with Mars is impossible is to blink possible facts with reference to the yet undiscovered sources of power through the universe.

SONGS OF THE POETS

On the Death of Sir Philip Sidney—By Henry Constable (1562-1613)

Give pardon, blessed soul, to my bold cries,
If they, importune, interrupt thy song,
Which now with joyful notes thou sign'st among
The angel-quiristers of th' heavenly skies.
Give pardon eke, sweet soul, to my slow eyes,
That since I saw thee now it is so long,
And yet the tears that unto thee belong
To thee as yet they did not sacrifice.
I did not know that thou wert dead before;
I did not feel the grief I did sustain;
The greater stroke astonisheth the more;
Astonishment takes from us sense of pain;
I stood amazed when others' tears begun,
And now begin to weep when they have done.

Nothing Frightens Man So Much as Nothing

Nothing frightens man so much as nothing. The idea of empty space is horrible to him. He abhors a vacuum. If he can't find anything else to fill it with he fills it with his imagination. Primitive man filled the space about him with fairies, ghosts, spirits, demons, invisible beings of all sorts, some of them grotesque or malignant, but anyhow company to him.

Man early fixed up a snug little universe according to his fancy, a bowl inverted on a plate, as mushrooms are served. Above the bowl were the gods who were pleasant to look to, although their conduct was not always what it should be. Below the plate were demons, terrifying, of course, but better than nothing for they were much like folks after all.

But when Galileo's telescope knocked to pieces this neat boxed-in cosmos man was scared out of its wits. At first he refused to believe it and he does not like it yet. For he cannot bear to think of being stuck on the surface of a ball that is whirling around at the rate of a thousand miles an hour and traveling through empty space at the rate of a thousand miles a minute.

The dear sun dwarfed of dreadful suns,
Like fiercer flowers on stalk,
Earth lost and like a little pea,
In high heaven's towering forestry.

Man feels as lonely as Robinson Crusoe, thus cast away on a desert planet. There are no neighbors within call, perhaps none anywhere in the universe. The nearest habitation is over 200,000 miles away and nobody lives there, not even lunatics. The next is Venus 25,700,000 miles off on the road to the sun while in the other direction the nearest planet is Mars 48,600,000 miles away. The four big planets farther out are too cold for comfort, 300 or 400 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, and besides they are gaseous or at least so soft in substance that a man would sink into them like water. The only other planet, Mercury, is so close to the sun that it has a temperature of 450 degrees which would melt the Tin Man.

All of the planets, therefore, seem out of the question as the abode of life with the possible exception of the two nearest to ours in space and nearest to ours in size and state. But there is no evidence that either Mars or Venus have water or oxygen enough to support animal life of any sort. Some astronomers have reported a complicated system of irrigation ditches on Mars, but others with equally good eyes and bigger telescopes can see nothing of the sort. The mean temperature on Mars is probably some 60 degrees below zero so most likely Mars has long ago lost the higher forms of life if it ever had any.

Human life requires such a close adjustment and physical conditions that there is small chance of its finding suitable means of support anywhere else than upon the earth and even here the favorable environment will not last forever. Even if the climate of another planet should at some time have been like ours it would be highly improbable that the course of evolution should have produced things in the least like ourselves.

But man hates to be alone in the dark so he seeks for a friendly face in every conceivable quarter of the universe.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SINCE BEVERIDGE EXPOUNDED

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat]

Mr. Beveridge when in congress once declared that congress was empowered to particularize so narrowly as to interstate commerce that it could exclude therefrom or regulate therein dairy products from a brindle cow milked by a red-headed maid sitting on a three-legged milk stool, while dairy products produced under other circumstances remained unexcluded and unregulated. He made the statement with special reference to the congressional authority to legislate on child labor, but he was wrong. Two congressional child labor laws have since been declared invalid. If their sole accountability for hideous child labor evils will not increase the sense of responsibility of the states, what could increase their sense of responsibility?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Eugene Debs, for whom on the personal side, there is a high regard, is writing concerning prison life. He has had bountiful experience of it. He writes with repression, and without sign of bitterness. It is easy to get his point of view, and yet difficult to accept his conclusions. The problem he thinks to have solved still awaits solution.

HENRY JAMES

The necessity for restraining certain people of their liberty is deeply to be regretted, not for their sake alone. Their detention and support place a great burden on society. If the fault primarily, lies with society, it thus is paying a penalty, but at the same time, a penalty vastly harder to endure, is being paid by the individual. Perhaps the division of punishment is unfair. No remedy is in sight.

Mr. Debs would have the prison superceded by the hospital. Just now the Nebraska authorities have in charge a man charged with murders and nameless outrages. He boasts of his deeds, and shows no sign of penitence. At large he would be a greater menace than an escaped wild beast. There is no indication that gentleness would tame his fierce lust to be a creature of prey.

Only a few days ago two men robbed the cashier of a Los Angeles theater by threatening to kill him. At this writing they are at large. Crimes of violence continue frequent. Streets, highways and homes are unsafe.

Sympathy is slow to stir on behalf of assassins and prowling thieves. An old-fashioned notion persists that they belong behind bolts and bars.

A veteran lawyer of Chicago, retiring at the age of 77, has uttered what he describes as his swan song. It is an impassioned appeal against permitting the hoarding of the earnings of great estates to be passed along to future generations.

The venerable lawyer struck a note to which there will be thoughtful and definte response. There is no encouragement as to the future progress of any nation in a plan that deliberately builds up a class who shall be above the necessity for work.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Now and then old Marcus pulls a bright line. He is the liver-footed old gentleman who hobbles about the fourth table from the big window in the club dining room. He isn't the best waiter in the world, but because he is always willing and pleasant he has the best customers in the club.

"I asked for tea, Marcus," I told him at noon, "and you brought me coffee."

Marcus said he was sorry and he looked and acted sorry. As he started for the pantry he made this profound observation:

"If you haven't got it in the head you've got to make up for it with the legs."

I've been thinking about that ever since. The old man was not an intellectual marvel in his best and brightest days. Hardly a waiter in the club but can outtalk him or outargue him or tell more of Russian, Siberian, Czecho-Slovakian or Gallic conditions than old Marcus. Lots of them are better guides to the perfect dinner than the old man, for his tastes run to a plebeian monotony of ham and eggs. Yet he is easily the favorite waiter in the club made up entirely of ingrowing grouches, whose delight it is to take out on the nearest human object the green wrath aroused by a distant and dangerous person. As one consequence he is a pretty well-to-do waiter. As another he has been able to get his sons started with big men in big business. Merely because his willing legs were always at it, even when his mediocre brain failed.

Since old Marcus confided to me his secret of success I have been able to identify a number of Marcuses among the members of the club. They are not profound. They are not deep. They are muddy enough mentally to disguise their shallowness. They get their ideas and their sentiments and even their emotions second hand. When Ye Loyal Briton Fashion Shoppe announces that green ribbons are to be worn around hats, not one of them would venture on the street without a green ribbon.

But they are successful because they have added to a fair amount of common sense of the herd variety—the sort that keeps a calf with the herd instead of losing him in the bushes—moderate honesty and plenteous industry. Their legs serve their heads. Lawyers, doctors, real estate salesmen, merchants, they work hard. If they make a mistake they undo it by working a little harder.

Old Marcus has trotted many a needless mile in his life because of that slevish brain. But he is close to the top of his class. He is a success.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

Special "days" used to be considered great occasions. They were looked forward to for weeks, they were specially planned for. A change from the long continued dullness of common days, they were welcomed by all. Christmas, New Years, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving—how joyfully we anticipated them, what joys their arrival brought!

Now the number of special days has so increased that we find it hard to even remember them all. Washington's Birthday, Lincoln's Birthday, Arbor Day, May Day, Mother's Day, Flag Day, Labor Day, Armistice Day, and a host of lesser "days" follow each other through the calendars of our lives. Worthy, all of them, yet the repetition takes away somewhat of the novelty and enjoyment.

Many causes are not satisfied with one day, but wish a whole week devoted to their special recognition. If we should pay due attention to all our brains would be doing a sort of mental contortion all the time in order to keep up.

And tag days! How the "causes" to be brought before the public by this means have increased their number! The aftermath of war, in part, but not wholly, how they confront us! In one large New England city last year, sixty-five licenses for "tag days" were issued—more than one a week. Only six of these reported results, but these six sold $11,000 worth of tags. The board of overseers of public welfare of that city decided that hereafter those in charge be required to make strict report of amounts received.

If these are the only modern ways by which to call forth remembrance and generosity, or practice of some virtue, they have their definite use. But at the same time it is true that their multiplication loses for them somewhat of force in the minds of the many.

AMAZING GROWTH OF TUESDAY CLUB DESCRIBED

Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, Pres., Makes Annual Report of Organization

The report of Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, read yesterday at the meeting of the club, reviewing the year's work, follows.

We are beginning to close a happy and prosperous year. It has been fraught with unusual successes in transactions, and we have passed through a period of financing that will never be our experience again.

Early in the fall of last year your president asked the club to purchase the corner of Central avenue and Lexington and sell the Brand boulevard property. At that time we owned 153x138 feet at the corner of Brand and Lexington and had $2500 on deposit and $2300 in Liberty bonds. Today we own 200x240 feet at Central and Lexington and have $22,741 in cash.

One year ago we had 538 members and today we have 638. This is a healthy normal growth; no membership campaign has been conducted.

This year we have met every Tuesday, holding 36 regular meetings and two social afternoons.

The open forums held upon the first Tuesday have been open to the public and were full of interest and helpful as well as broadening the scope of our interest in the world of affairs. We have been addressed by such men as Dr. E. C. Moore of U. C. and Professor Fairbanks of U. C, the county sheriff, president of the board of supervisors, chairman of Associated Charities, our own city manager and a group of splendid progressive women. These programs have not cost the club one cent.

While all have not been well attended, it was as well as one could expect in any new move.

The sections have kindly responded to the programs on the third Tuesday and in this manner have demonstrated the value of their sections as a cultural asset to the community. It has been my desire to impress upon the members the importance of joining the sections and taking up some definite line of study.

I have presided over 33 regular meetings of the club—the sickness and death in my family compelling my absence upon three occasions. I have attended 23 reciprocity days at other clubs, have attended the presidents' councils and the district and state conventions. Have presided over 22 board meetings as well as many meetings of the building committee, written many letters and answered the phone some thousands of times.

We were unfortunate in the loss of an exceptional woman from our board, our beloved recording secretary, Mrs. Oliver Clark, but fortune smiled upon us again when we secured our present secretary, Mrs. John Dunn.

Our general curator moved from Glendale and found her new home made her duties rather arduous, so she was compelled to resign, and Mrs. B. O. Holbrook very graciously consented to fill the unexpired term.

The three members added to the board this year have been very helpful, since a club of this size finds many divisions of work necessary, and these additional ones have lightened the burdens of the others.

To assist in the extension work of the state and to honor our beloved first president we paid the sum of $100 and placed her name upon the founders' roll.

We sent a strong and urgent appeal to Washington asking our President to do everything in his power for the promotion of a world peace at the conference in Washington.

Your president has been invited to represent you upon civic and school committees, to speak at meetings, to give toasts at banquets, to serve upon the board at the county fair and also upon the county anti-crime committee.

Our charities have been many. The Near East and others receiving liberal contributions. We have taken our full part in whatever good work presented itself to us.

In our various transactions we have been ably assisted by many kind-hearted, interested business men who are staunch friends of the club. Mr. Charles Guthrie gave us $400, which was his commission upon one of our deals. Mrs. A. L. Burson gave us $350 from a transaction in which she was interested. Mr. Oliver Clark has rendered every kindness and service of many dollars in value in legal papers, etc. Mr. Eastman and Mr. Black at the State bank have been very kind in escrow work. Mr. Albert Pearce in outlining legal proceedings. We are also indebted to eight business men who came to our rescue when our court order failed to arrive on schedule and signed our note for $9000 at the bank. Such kindness as we have received merits our sincere thanks.

The local newspapers have been kind and generous in space and notices.

Through the kindness of the drama section the club was enabled to make a delightful contribution to the program at the district convention. This brought to the club many compliments for our generous financial support and to the drama section for the remarkable talent displayed.

We are greatly indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Turck for the two wonderful tapestries which will adorn our new club home.

We have been honored by having one of our members on the district board, Mrs. R. E. Chase, chairman of drama.

Our various committees have been faithful to duty, all contributing in their respective ways to the success of the club year. The word "club" implies co-operation and only by making this word its watchword can any club succeed.

To any who have assisted in any way, to those who have lent their gracious support, to those who have spoken the kind, encouraging words to the faithful officers and kind members of this club I extend my sincere thanks, for it is only because of you that I have been enabled to make this report.

CALL OF GOOD IS DR. ISAAC'S THEME

Under the caption, "The Call of the Good," Rev. E. Morgan Isaac last Sunday morning said in part: "The great question of the ages has been 'How shall men be saved?' Now scientists are taking an interest in it. We are beginning torealize that salvation means bringing man to himself, to realize what he is. Many mistakes have been made in the past. The fundamental error was the belief that man originally was pure and perfect, afterward suffering a tremendous fall that disastrously affected all future generations, in that it was believed, and still is believed by many persons, that faith in redemption through the death of Jesus Christ is the essential thing in salvation."

After dwelling at some length on the rapid development of Christ from a humble carpenter to fellowship with God and authority as a preacher, the pastor said: "He lived His sermons, manifested God in the flesh. By His life and teachings he revealed the wonderful fact that in every man is a God whom he is capable of manifesting. It is not a just thing for anyone to suffer for another's acts. It is against universal law and there is no righteousness in it. Christ became a savior of mankind through His unfoldment of every thing that pertained to God. This is the call of the good.

"Appeal to the powers lying dormant within a man and they will come out, in response to your call. A great man must rely on his own resources. He will never become a good man if he relies on someone else to answer for his sins. The Infinite Being has put potential powers within us to unfold and develop the goodness that shall prove our salvation.

"We cannot think without taking on the character of our thinking, and when we realize the wondrous goodness, justice, and beneficience of God, we will strive to become more like Him. That is the call of the good, not bestowed on any person, but earned by each through earnest and persistent endeavor. How do we know we have this inner goodness? By the still, small voice! Only one person in the world can put you in paradise, and that person is you."

EAGLE ROCK PERSONALS

Driving down from Berkeley in their automobile, Mr. and Mrs. Morris M. Viele and their two sons, arrived on Monday at the home of Mrs. Viele's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Terry, for a visit. They will go on to San Diego Saturday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Terry, to spend a few days with Mrs. Geo. S. Pickrell, another daughter of the Terrys, and her family.

Word has been received from Mrs. A. Scheemer, of 142 North Castle avenue announcing her safe arrival at Hamburg, Germany, where she will remain six months, visiting relatives.

The many friends of Mrs. Laura S. Eddy, who lately moved from her attractive home at 143 North Acacia avenue, can now find her at 338 South Alvarado street, Los Angeles.

EAGLE ROCK HAS NEW BUILDINGS DAILY

Few people realize how rapidly the business district of Eagle Rock is growing. Hardly a week passes that two or three new business firms do not open up in this thriving little city. This week three new concerns open on the East Side, which section, just now, is coming to the front.

The Bright Spot

This is a new business to be opened at 732 East Colorado boulevard, Eagle Rock, Saturday. Chas. Sterzing, well known in Eagle Rock and Glendale, is proprietor. He will serve lunch, carry all kinds of soft drinks, sandwiches, etc., a complete line of cigars and tobacco, and will accommodate people with a small line of groceries. He will be open on Sunday. Mr. Sterzing has a neat little place and will give splendid service.

BETTINGEN CO. IS TO AID EAGLE ROCK BUILD

The coming of the Wm. J. Bettingen Lumber company, which purchased the Shirley-Allen Lumber company of Eagle Rock, means much for the development of this rapidly growing municipality. The Bettingen company last week consummated the deal, and placed W. R. Letton, a well known lumber man, in charge of the Eagle Rock plant. Mr. Letton will be the general manager of the Bettingen Lumber company, which completes the establishment of several lumber yards in this section. Mr. Letton is one of the best posted lumber men in the state. His services will prove of great value to anyone desiring to build.

Wm. J. Bettingen, widely known banker and lumber man, is at the head of the Bettingen Lumber company, and is one of the big men of the country. He is president of the Imperial Lumber Yards, Limited, Winnepeg, which company operates eighty lumber yards in western Canada. He resides at Pasadena with his family. He has recently disposed of a controlling interest in the Alhambra Savings bank, and has other and varied interests. Although a large part of his life has been spent in Canada, he is a native of Minnesota, a 32nd degree Mason, a Knight Templar, and holds membership in nearly all the Southern California country clubs. He will take an active interest in the communities, where his lumber yards are located, and this feature alone will be worth much to the communities.

The secretary and treasurer of the firm is Myron E. Etienne.

EDITED BY N. D. GARVER

USE COIL AERIALS TO REDUCE STATIC

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Don't be surprised this summer if your new radio receiving set gives forth a first class imitation of a boiler shop in full operation instead of an anticipated lecture on the culture of silk worms, says the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce in announcing that the "bad radio weather" season is now on.

According to the Bureau of Standards these summer disturbances, called "strays," "static," "atmospherics," and other names are in evidence from about April 1 to October 1. Their seriousness varies from wear interference for brief intervals to a continuous succession of boiler shop noises which may last throughout the night.

Coil Aerial Good Reducer

A great deal of work has been done by radio engineers and scientists in an effort to reduce the interfering noises caused by these strays. At important government and commercial stations certain devices and methods are in use by means of which strays are considerably reduced, and it is made possible to obtain fairly reliable receptions during the summer. The apparatus and methods now employed at such stations are usually too elaborate to be used at the ordinary amateur station. One method which the amateur will find helpful in reducing certain types or strays is the use instead of the usual elevated antenna, of a coil antenna and a more sensitive receiving set. A coil antenna may be constructed by winding a suitable number of turns of wire with proper spacing on a square wooden frame about four feet square.

Certain types of strays seem to come from a particular direction. Many strays, however, have no directional properties, including those due to local electric storms. The coil antenna has the propertyt of receiving a stronger signal when pointed in the direction from which the signal is approaching, and receiving only a weak signal when pointed at right angles to that direction. Thus by rotating a coil antenna to the proper position the directional types of strays can be greatly reduced and a better ratio or signal to strays will be obtained. The ordinary elevated antenna does not possess marked directional properties, and therefore can not be used like the coil antenna for stray elimination. However, the strength of signal picked up by a coil antenna is much smaller than the strength of signal picked up by the ordinary elevated antenna, and good results should not be expected from a coil antenna unless three or more stages of amplification are used. Some relief can also be obtained by persons having good amplifiers by using a "ground antenna." This is a long insulated wire run in a shallow trench or on the surface of the ground. The ground wire should be run in the direction of the station from which the most signals are to be received, and should preferably be several hundred feet long.

Nearby Stations Heard Easier

Through strays of given intensity, better results can be obtained in receiving strong signals than weak signals. Nearby stations can be received much better through the strays than distant stations. It is therefore fortunate that broadcasting stations are being established at a considerable number of different cities located in all parts of the United States, so that for most parts of the country there is a broadcasting station from which fair reception can be expected even when strays of moderate intensity exist.

WASHINGTON U INSTALLS RADIO

Prices and estimates on equipment for the 500 watt radio broadcaster to be installed on the campus of the State college of Washington have been secured by Dean H. V. Carpenter of the college of engineering, and the installation is expected to be complete, ready for operation, when the fall term opens September 18.

Appropriations amounting to $1200 from the Associated Students, the Alumni association, and the college departments, are to be supplemented by $800 voted by the Pullman Commercial club, now being raised by subscription.

Some of the equipment will be ordered at once, and the rest as fast as the fund is completed. Dean Carpenter will install it, assisted by Homer J. Dana, special experimental engineer of the college, and Harold Vance, laboratory assistant in physics and president of the All-Engineers' club.

Since there are more than 20,000 receiving sets in the state, it will be possible to reach a large audience with the Glee club concerts, lectures and news service. Pullman alone has 50 amateur receiving stations now in operation, and with the broadcaster at work it is believed many more installations will be made.

"The great demand for radio equipment may delay shipments of some of our material," said Mr. Vance, "but we hope to be able to get it all by fall. W. H. Irish, radio head of the Duerr-Mitchell Electric company, believes this is no fad, but is passing its experimental stage, and will shortly be an invaluable thing, just as the telephone and telegraph proved to be in their day."

RADIO STREET DANCE ARRIVES

ONTARIO, Calif., June 21.—It has arrived—the radio street dance.

After an hour's concert heard in the open air here recently through the arrangements of Crombie Allen, president of the Southern California associated dailies, a block of Euclid avenue was roped off, corn meal sprinkled over the smooth surface of the street, and fox-trotting and waltzing to the tune of radio music began.

FIRST HEARING LOVE NOW USED BY CUPID

OKLAHOMA CITY.—When the soft tones from Frank Bird's voice came through the ether the heart of Dolly Smithson was all a-flutter. Her receiving set picked up the orchestra music. Mr. Bird is director of the orchestra. It was a case of love at first hearing. A few letters were exchanged and now there is a wedding.

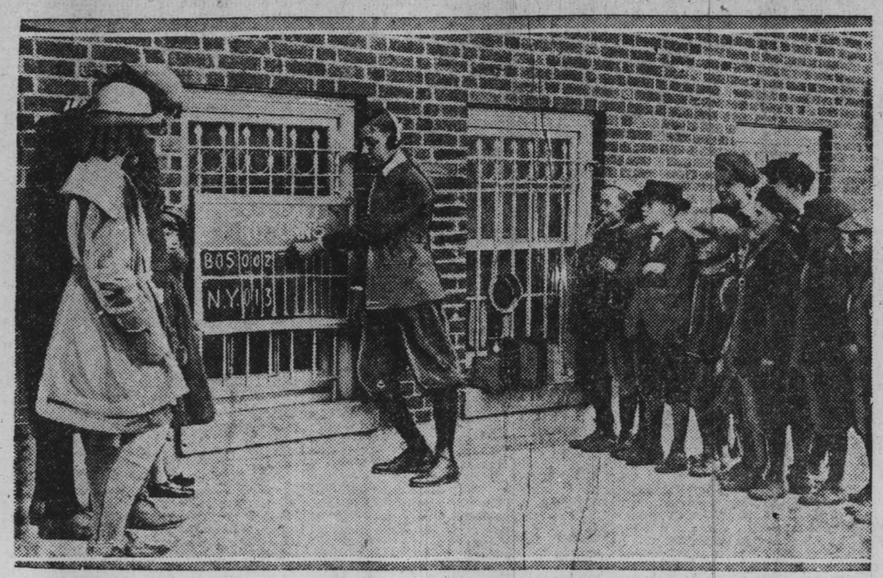
NEW YORK BOY GETS BASEBALL SCORES FOR PALS BY RADIO



Bob Koerner is very popular with his playmates and little neighbors. He has a radio set on the ground beside his home, on the roof of which is the antennae. After school the youngsters gather at the Koerner residence and get the latest scores. Some of the more serious minded wait or come back for the concerts and lectures.

PHUNNY STUFF

A hoopskirt has been successfully used as an antenna. Ladies will have a distinct advantage in the matter of radio receiving if this quaint style returns.—Radio Digest.

INDUCTIVELY CONNECTED RADIO CIRCUIT

Most of the receiving sets now in use are of the inductively coupled or inductively connected type, in which the oscillations in the tuned aerial circuit induce oscillations in a circuit coupled with it. In this case the coil is generally called the primary coil.

The closed circuit, which includes the detector and receivers, is the secondary, and its coil is the secondary or the receiving transformer. It should be noted that these terms are just the reverse of those used in the transmitting circuit.

Circuits of the inductively connected type have advantages over those of the directly connected type, in that they can generally be rendered less liable to static disturbances and will have sharper tuning, so that it is more nearly possible to cut out undesired stations, etc.

Two Closed Types

The closed of secondary circuits are of two general types, called untuned and tuned. In the untuned circuit there is no secondary tuning condenser, the only adjustment being in the number of turns in the inductance, which is usually in steps many turns. In the adjustment of such a set to get signals of maximum loudness, the circuits must be adjusted to resonance, and the proper coupling between them must be used. The primary circuit will be sharply tuned, but the secondary only very broadly tuned, if at all.

If a close coupling is used between theh circuits the tuning of both will be broad, and hence the set will have the disadvantage of being liable to interference. Under certain conditions, however, as in searching for an unknown station, it may be of advantage to use this coupling first, and then, when the station has been picked up, to loosen the coupling and to make such changes in both circuits as will give the sharpest tuning and the loudest signals.

Broadly Tuned Circuits

In many receiving sets of this type, the so-called untuned secondary circuit is really a broadly tuned one, in which the inductance of the coil and its distributed capacity form the tuning elements. The range of wave lengths to which each step is thus broadly tuned is usually marked for each contact, thus 400 to 600 meters, 600 to 1000 meters, etc.

In the tuned circuit there is a variable tuning condenser, the adjustment of which is necessary to secure the maximum loudness of signals. The secondary inductance is sometimes variable by steps and in a few cases by single turns.

It must be remembered that adjustments for any wave length can be made with different combinations of inductance and capacity. In general it will be found that in both the primary and secondary circuits there is a best value of these combinations of inductance and capacity for any given transmitting station, and that these combinations may be different for each different station, and consequently must be found by trial.

The tuning of the inductively coupled receiving set requires a careful adjustment of both circuits and of the coupling between them. The three adjustments are all dependent one on the other, so that if the circuits are adjusted to resonance with loose coupling and the coupling is then increased and made close, the circuits will be put out of resonance and retuning of both is necessary.

Similarly, if the circuits are closely coupled and then each is tuned, it may be found that there are two points of resonance or two wave lengths in each circuit, although only a single wave length is being radiated by the transmitting station.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR RADIO FANS

Speak directly into the broadcaster.

If you have trouble getting your party do not jiggle the antennae; shake the aerial pole or hammer on the roof.

Be courteous over the radiophone. Do not shout: "Get off the zone!" "Aw, hang up!" "This is a private wave length," or other vulgar commands.

Never lose your patience to the point of yelling. Remember, after a hard day's work the little electrons become very exhausted and nervous.

To correct lack of attention on the part of the atmosphere, complaint operators will be maintained in blimps over all larger cities.

Never ask for "information." Just listen long enough and you'll get both ears full.

To report a fire, say, "I wish to report a fire." In case you have a fire just at the time the "Man in the Moon" stories are being broadcasted you will have to wait until they are finished. The management will send subscribers a booklet on "How to Keep Fires Going Until an Opportunity Comes to Report Them" on request.

Subscribers will please excuse slight errors in establishing connections on the radiophone. If you ask for "Saxophone Selections by J. Goofus Zuff" and get a "Fashion Talk by Arabella McNally" kindly "excuse it, please." Likewise, if you call for "Address on the Darwinian Theory by Professor Duncan Dododbird" and are looped up with the Man in the Moon, you will please hang up, call the complaint operator and say in a courteous voice, "I got the wrong annoyance."

Subscribers must not swear through the air. It is likely to singe the feathers of birds in flight.—Denver Post.

MINNEAPOLIS.—On account of the recent radio conference at Washington recommending universities and other public institutions being granted wider privileges than individuals, the governor of Minnesota has requested the newspapers to put their broadcasting stations under the control of the University of Minnesota.

FOOLISH FRISK HAS A FUNNY NOTION

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Becauthe what?" Frisk Squirrel stopped wriggling in the strong grasp which was trying to hold him still. It was scary to be caught. But whoever had him didn't mean to eat him—not right away. And Frisk knew his paws. When they tried to run away with him, they just took him from one trouble into the next. This last was the very worst of all. But there might be something more awful still. "Becauthe what?" he asked again in an awed voice.

"Because," purred Malty Kitten (for that's who it was), "bigger folks walk out o' nights than mice and buzz-wings. There's the paw-foots and the claw-foots and the toothed ones and the tailed ones. And the snap-ups and the gobbleuns," he went on, cheerfully inventing; because his cat's eyes could see Frisk's little ears stand up and his little mouth droop open with horror. "Where do you live? And I'll take you home."

"No, no! Home's dess the place I ithn't going." Scared as he was, Frisk shook a determined head. "I—I—I'm going thomewhereth elthe. But if I followed my pawth, they takth me all wrong. Tan't I thtay with you?"

"Oh, no. I'm going all the way to Doctor Muskrat's Pond," objected the cat.

"That'th the very plathe!" Frisk brightened up. "And then I'll thtay with my Uncle Tad Coon."

Malty chuckled to think of Tad playing daddy to the little rascal beside him. That would be worth seeing. "All right," he said. "You can tag along."

They didn't hurry. They invented a game of "catch-the-bug" as they strolled along. Grasshoppers scored only one, because they were so easy to find, tucked in at the roots of the grass stems. Crickets counted two, because they skitter about so that it's hard to catch them. A pinch-beetle scored against you—three if he nipped, and one if he didn't. Then Frisk found a snail.

"That isn't a bug," sniffed Malty. "It hasn't any wings."

"Fuzz!" said the little squirrel. "What differenth doeth that make? Lots of bugth don't have 'em."

"Don't they, though?" insisted the cat. "Show me one without 'em."

Frisk smelled at a root. Then he started digging. Presently he fished out the shiny, varnished case a young moth lives in while his wings are growing. "Here's a bug!" said he. "Now show me a wing on him!"

"You win," laughed the cat. "A snail's a bug." They proceeded to eat it, bite and bite about. So it was a full and sleepy little squirrel who arrived at Tad Coon's tree.

REPUBLICANS CALL DISTRICT MEETING

The Republican Congressional committee of the Ninth district has issued a call for a conference to be held at Pasadena, in the assembly-rooms of the Y. M. C. A., 124 North Marengo avenue, on Wednesday, July 12, at 10:30 a. m., to endorse a candidate for Congress in that district.

It is recited in the resolution, issued by the committee through its chairman, G. H. Welch of Long Beach, and, its vice-chairman Judge George E. Waldo of Pasadena, that such a call "ha stwice resulted in an agreement by the Republicans upon one candidate, who in each case was elected by a large majority." And the resolution continues that "it is the unanimous opinion of members of this committee that all Republicans of the Ninth district should give their solid support to but one Republican candidate in the coming primary election."

The conference will consist of 352 delegates, which will include the members of the Ninth Congressional committee, the State Republican committee, the Republican County Central committee, and of representatives to be chosen from the Republican clubs in the various assembly districts, the Republican clubs of each assembly district to be entitled to three times as many representatives as there are members of the Republican County Central committee in each of said districts respectively, such representation of each assembly district to be apportioned equitably between the clubs of the assembly district.

The ninth district is now represented by Walter F. Lindberger of Long Beach, who is a candidate for re-election.

Representation from the seven assembly districts within the territory will be from the Congressional committee, State committee, Republican County Central committee, and the club, respectively tabulated as follows:

61	6	1	15	45	67
65	3	1	2	6	12
66	3	1	6	18	28
67	5	1	13	39	58
68	5	1	13	39	58
69	5	1	14	42	62
70	6	1	15	45	67
Total					352

The great banker looked keenly at the young man. "So you are temporally embarrassed, eh?" he asked, kindly.

"Im sorry to say I am," said the young man, emboldener by his manner.

"How much do you want?"

"Five hundred dollars would tide me over."

"And what security can you offer?"

"I can offer you," said the young man, impressively, "my own personal security."

The old man arose with a slow smile and raised the lid of an ironbound chest which stood in a corner. "Will you get in here, please?" he said.

"In there? Why?"

"Because," was the reply; "this is the place in which I always keep my securities."

LEMURIA'S RISING FURTHER DEBATED

Hannah Luella Hukill, M. M., Discourses on Evolutionary Geology

By Hannah Luella Hukill, M. D.
Physician and Chiropractor

Because of the wide interest manifested in the recent article on Lemuria, and the hint of the lost Atlantis, the editor has been kind enough to invite me to write a series of articles on our submerged continents. This followed an editorial in the Press, relating the fact that the United States government had raised the flag on the new island, which lately rose above the surface of the water in the southern Pacific.

This is a vast subject and, to treat it in its broadest sense, would necessitate taking up the whole scheme of evolution as it passes through the seven great evolutionary stages, each of which is called a chain, for since there is no halting place in evolution, progression and not retrogression is the law. Our own earth chain, for instance, is now in its fourth round and has recently passed the nadir of its greatest density, and is entering the upward spiral of its evolution. This is why so many, almost startling discoveries are daily coming through to the race minds. But since I am not sure my readers would be interested in so long a dissertation on man-in-the-making, I will confine myself, for the present at least, to the physical basis for facts, as outlined by geologists. The story of these long lost continents may help us to realize something of the great world drama, in which we are each playing our own part.

No one understands better than these scientific men how the surface of the globe is constantly changing and shifting, and that where it was formerly the ocean bed it is now dry land; and where it is now dry land it was once the floor of the ocean. This explains why sea fossils are so often found on the tops of mountains, and become such a mystery to the inhabitants. Ernst Haeckel, in his "History of Creation" writes on this subject as follows: "The South Sea at one time formed a large Pacific continent, and the numerous little islands, which now lie scattered in it, were simply the highest peaks of the mountains covering that continent. This large continent of former times, an Englishman, by the name of Sclater, called Lemuria from the Monkey-like animals which inhabited it, and it is, at the same time, of great importance from being the probable cradle of the human race. Continuing Haeckel states: "Thus ever since liquid water existed on the earth, the boundaries of water and land have eternally changed, and we may assert that the outlines of continents and islands have never remained for an hour, nay, even a minute, exactly the same. For the waves eternally and perpetually break on the edge of the coast, and whatever the land in these places loses in extent, it gains in other places by the accumulation of mud, which condenses into solid stone and again rises above the level of the sea as new land. Nothing can be more erroneous than the idea of a firm and unchangeable outline of our continents, such as impressed upon us in early youth by defective lessons in geography, which are devoid of geological basis." Alfred Russell Wallace, who was a discoverer with Darwin of the law of natural selection, agreeing fully with Haeckel, said in part in this connection: "This is undoubtedly a legitimate and highly probable supposition, and it is an example of the way in which a study of the geographical distribution of animals may enable us to reconstruct the geography of a bygone age." Then he states how, through the whole tertiary age, and perhaps during much of the later periods, the great land masses of the earth were probably situated in the northern hemisphere, and proceeds to say: "In the southern hemisphere there appears to have been three considerable and very ancient land masses, varying in extent from time to time, but always keeping distinct from each other, and represented more or less completely by Australia, South Africa and South America of our own time. Into these flowed successive waves of life as they each in turn became temporarily united with some part of the northern land."

HELL'S HALF ACRE IN LOS ANGELES DESCRIBED.

Alice F. James Describes Conditions of Underworld of Big City

By ALICE FRANK JAMES

Those who profess to be 100 per cent Americans: you who should uphold the laws of the country—the Constitution of the United States—and who are not in favor of prohibition or the passing of the Wright law, or who, per chance, are indifferent to the urgent cry for help to protest our future manhood from that damnable fiend, "the liquor traffic," and its infernal companion and agent, "the bootlegger," to you these lines are dedicated and I trust that my humble effort may call forth your support to stamp out an evil that threatens to overwhelm our nation.

Many of you are indifferent to the crying need of the enforcement law which is to be voted upon at the November election. Many of you do not realize the awful pitfalls and the terrible crimes for which the lack of proper law enforcement is responsible.

In a town not very far distant a group of young people were enjoying an evening automobile ride. A young man in the party pulled out a flask from his hip pocket and invited his fellow passengers to join him in a drink. They all refused, one remarking "he was afraid of the stuff." The young man was chagrined to think that such a priceless treasure should be scorned by his companions and advised, quite proudly, that he had been drinking it for two weeks and he was still alive. Two days afterwards the same companions called at the home of the young man and were informed of his sudden death.

This is only one true incident of the many that happen daily. In this case it might have been your boy, or your girl, and I am wondering how you would have felt in the matter. Is it worth while to lock the garage door after the car has been stolen. Do you know that there are hundreds of young men under the age of 20 who believe it a privilege to carry "something on the hip?" Are you aware of the fact that one of these boys might possibly be the escort of your girl? Is it not time to wake up to the seriousness of this thing? Do you realize that the "bootlegger" is a greater menace to your children than was the saloon? What are you going to do about it?

Let me invite you to travel with me for a few moments to what is called "Hell's Half Acre" in Los Angeles, that small portion of the city surrounded by the Plaza and Temple blocks.

We drive from First to Second streets about 7:30 in the evening. The sidewalks and streets are crowded with a seething mass of humanity, men and boys of all ages, all walks of life and all denominations. All along the street we see crowds surrounding some soapbox orator, or some wild fanatic or political speaker.

The one who yells the loudest attracts the largest crowd and it is seldom you find the religious workers with the biggest throng. The loud-mouthed barkers seem to appeal to "bums" and "idlers" who make "Hell's Half Acre" their stamping ground.

We stop our car half way down the street and a curious crowd of Mexicans, colored people and poor white trash gather around. For a moment we hesitated as to the advisability of getting out, but are reassured by a kindly faced and gray-haired man who steps out from the Midnight Mission and bids us welcome.

The "Midnight Mission" is a haven of refuge for the "down and out" and has been made famous by the individual financial effort of "Brother" Tom Liddecoat."

We enter quite a large and well-lighted room and pass swiftly up the aisle to the platform, where we are allotted seats. Some man is leading in the singing of a gospel hymn. We turn and face the audience for the first time and our eyes fill with unshed tears as we gaze on that crowd of fallen humanity. Gray-haired men and youths, from 1 years upward, huddle close together and mingle with black and brown of other races. There is no class or color distinction in this room, all pride has been broken, their honor and manhood has departed in the association with sin and vice.

Can it be possible that these derelicts were once sweet, innocent babies, rocked in the arms of a loving mother or indulged by a fond father? Have these fallen creatures ever had hopes, ambitions or golden dreams of love with a future home and happiness supreme? Such are the thoughts that surge through our minds as we gaze with unspeakable pain at the group before us.

Any one of these 200 derelicts will freely confess to you that "drink" has been his downfall. It matters not whether he be a "dope friend," a "holdup man," a murderer or a burglar, the cause of their "fall" is attributed by them to the cursed drink. Might I state that dozens of the above mentioned derelicts patronize the mission nightly.

The service, conducted by various friendly churches, consists mainly of the singing of gospel hymns, testimonies and scripture readings. The community singing is enjoyed the most and many of the derelicts sway to and fro while others clap their hands in perfect

Suddenly we hear a commotion in the audience. A drunken man has tried to leave his seat and has fallen amid the coarse laughter of his companions. He is picked up and placed back in his seat by "Brother Tom's" helpers and all is quiet again.

"Brother Tom" is a little late in arriving and we notice the grateful and loving eyes that follow him as he comes down the aisle. The whole atmosphere of the place undergoes a change as "Brother Tom's" personality radiates from the platform.

Every member of that audience loves and respects him, and why shouldn't they? Has he not led hundreds of them to Christ? He is giving his money, his time and his talents to prove to these men that no matter how far they have fallen there is still one left that will welcome them to the fold. "Brother Tom" is well beyond middle age, but is still a youth at heart. If ever a man deserved a crown it is he.

These derelicts are given a hearty meal at noon and are given a well-cooked supper following the service. The feed is wholesome and clean and plentiful.

After the supper the chairs and tables are cleared and the men rest upon their own beds, newspapers, which "Brother Tom" humorously describes as their "summer beds."

As the men pass out into the dining room our good friend describes each one to us and we become acquainted with their terrible story of sin. Here is an old man with grizzly hair, an old-time drunkard, almost blind from "wood alcohol." There goes a man who begs for more "dope" and another who has just gotten over a spell of "delirium tremens." Oh! the crime of this "bootlegging" stuff.

Over here is a young Mexican with a beautiful voice and a once handsome face; what a price he has paid by association with the "bootlegger." It has robbed him of his manhood, a career and perchance a happy home.

The most pitiful sight of all is that of a young boy, not more than 14, with dirty face and ragged clothes. With his big eyes he fairly drinks in the words of the evangelist, while the music seems to cast a spell over him. In the dining room we ask "Brother Tom" what he knows about the youngster and find that the half-grown boy is a stranger and has just drifted in that night.

When we ask the boy some questions we are met by a hopeless look from his expressive eyes and discover that an impediment in his speech proves a terrible handicap. "Brother Tom" advises him to spend the night there and to come again for a noonday meal. He says he will do all he can for the youngster and we know he will.

An old man close by informs us that he has been able to glean from the boy that he has no parents, no work and does not know how to go about securing employment. We wonder if the impediment in his speech is another case of "the sins of the father."

Homeless, an orphan, penniless, an outcast, surrounded by all the evils and vices known to humanity—and the greatest of all, "booze." Can you, dear reader, imagine how you would feel if this boy were your son, your brother?

Earlier in the evening we have seen the conversion of a man whose father was a minister for 40 years. Another who pleads for help but vows the demon "drink" has too strong a hold upon him. "No use," he states, the opportunities for buying "booze" are too many and I cannot resist the temptation."

Place after place is known to these men where they can procure this creation of the devil, "red hot," as they term it. And the federal officer's hands are tied because they have not sufficient men to raid these "blind pigs." And many of you who read these lines will have to answer to your God if you do not vote for the Wright law in November and thus help to provide several thousand more officers who will do their best to stamp out this terrible menace to humanity.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" Yes, and a thousand times yes. Men and women of California, ungirdle your swords and prepare for the great fight of victory. Shoulder to shoulder we must stand, as only in unity is there strength. We must use every force we can to combat this liquor traffic.

Shall we have it broadcasted to the world that California alone has failed to ratify the Eighteenth amendment? Are we citizens of the greatest state in the Union going to allow our beloved state to be the only black spot on the map?

Let us boost for the great enforcement law moving picture which is now being produced to make votes for the Wright bill. Let us all set an example to the whole world by voting "Yes" on the Wright bill at the November election.

CHILDREN'S FREE OSTEOPATHIC CLINIC HERE

Mr. Bion S. Walker Announces New Work Among Little Ones

A free clinic for children from the ages of 6 to 16 will be opened by Dr. Bion S. Walker, one morning a week at his office, 108 North Brand boulevard, commencing Saturday morning from 9 to 12 a. m.

This will be strictly an Osteopathic clinic, but where necessary, surgical aid will be rendered free of charge by reputable surgeons of this city. X-ray and other laboratory work will be done by a neighborhood laboratory for the cost of the material.

Dr. Warner has already done considerable work along this line, and finds that there are many children who are in need of treatment, but whose parents are not able to pay for it. It is for this reason that he has decided to open a clinic.

METERS SHOW GROWTH OF THE L. A. DISTRICT

Southern California Edison Co. Preparing Report on Extensions

Surprising commercial and industrial increases, and residential growth in Los Angeles and Southern and Central California, will be shown by the report of new electric meter connections, which the Southern California Edison company is preparing, to cover the first six months of 1922. Installation of new electric connections to factories, stores, ranches and houses, and the record of kilowat hour consumption, furnished an accurate measurement of community expansion. In the ten counties, exclusive of the city of Los Angeles, the number of the company's customers will have increased approximately eighteen thousand for the first six months of 1922, according to calculations just completed by Vice President S. M. Kennedy, in charge of business development.

Mr. Kennedy's figures are prepared from actual records for January, February,

ALL DAY MEETING AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

One Hundred Ladies Assemble at the Session

About 100 ladies enjoyed the all-day session of the Women's societies on Tuesday at the First Presbyterian church. At the morning session, the ladies spent their time quilting and sewing on quilt blocks for three quilts. The executive board meeting held a short business session, after which the luncheon, which was very delicious, was served, the members of Circle No. 7 being in charge.

A short talk was given by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, immediately following the luncheon, and Mrs. S. G. Taylor, who was in charge of the progra mfor the afternoon, read the scripture lesson from Abraham and Isaac.

Mrs. H. C. Smith presented a missionary pageant, representing a missionary hospital in San Juan. Those who took part were Miss Mildred Elliott, Miss Louise Daugherty, Miss Marie Grasenz, Miss Margaret Stanley, Miss Margaret West, Robert Boyd, Henry Taylor, Kenneth Lewis, Vera and Mary McAllister, Albert and Russell Newton, Jean Lyons, Mildred Fife and Helen Grasenz.

Mrs. Glen Porter read a very interesting paper on the life in the Philippine Islands and Mrs. Lennox read one on Cuba. A plea was made for sheets for the hospital in China, and everyone who possibly could was urged to give one or more.

Mrs. J. A. Newton and Mrs. McDill lead in prayer and the meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

THE SCHOOL SPIRIT PERVADES HIGH THESE DAYS

Atmosphere Is Surcharged With It as Principal Moyse Strikes Keynote

By GERTRUDE GIBBS

The most beautiful thing about Glendale High and the thing which looms large at this time in the year is the school spirit which fills the cup and brims over in commencement events.

It was this which made the atmosphere for the special assembly held Tuesday morning at which honor pins were bestowed upon the winners by Mrs. George U. Moyse with a little ceremonial at once dignified and impressive; an assembly when the trophies won in stiff contests by the lightweight teams in basketball and football, were presented to the school; when the lovely silver cup won in the Southern California championship was given to the school "for keeps" by Paul Hutchinson, wno was the third to win it for his school.

This development of school spirit is due in no small degree to efficient work done by the retiring cabinet, of which Miss Lucy Strother has been the president. The cabinet elected to serve next year is an assurance that the work will be carried on faithfully, the young people who pledged themselves to fulfill the obligations of office to the full measure of their ability being: Evert Smits, president; Paul Edmonds, secretary of boys; Allan Pollock, secretary of assemblies; Gordon Barton, secretary of boys' athletics; Frederica Marshall, secretary of girls' athletics; Isabel Tousey, secretary of debating; Percy Jewell, secretary of finance; Anna Merriken, secretary of state; Harry Bennett, secretary of publications; Helen Sherwood, secretary of girls; David Riskin, yell leader.

In the little address which he made to the student body as a preliminary to the installation of new cabinet officers, Principal George U. Moyse dwelt upon this point, saying:

"We want to establish an interest here that is akin to the family interest. The thought should always be, 'What can I do for my school that will be worth while.'

"Those of you who heard Leslie Henry will remember that he told how, when he was in high school, he made it a point to keep informed on all school activities and participate in them as far as possible, and to know every pupil in the school. When he went to college he carried out the same policy and became a man of affairs in college life.

It was then easy for him to make good in the business world by continuing that policy. After he had been for a year or so in the employ of one of the big bonding companies who underwrite huge blocks of bonds and retail them to private customers, he was sent with three other men to Australia to find out whether that country had the backing that would make its bonds a safe investment. He made the investigation, met the leading people of Australia, and on his return recommended the purchase of a quarter interest in Australia's immense bond issue.

"This young fellow, carrying out the policy he had formed in high school of giving himself in the way of service wherever he could, made good in high school and in college and these same qualities, enlarged a little bit, were the qualities which inspired confidence in his bonding company and made it take his word that it would be a safe thing to make that big investment. He found it only a little step from high school and college to business.

"The work of the student body this next year will be a challenge to get in and do some of the things that are worth while. You cannot all be cabinet officers, but your roll rooms will have organizations where you can always find things worth doing."

BRINKOP DOES NOT COUNT WA RRECORD

An ex-service man is running for office and is coming right out and stating that he does not want the voters to think that he is making the race solely upon the fact that he has an enviable war record. This man is Waler Brinkop, who is out for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. Brinkop can afford to take this stand, as he is well known in financial circles, where he has built up a reputation for honesty and ability. Just the same his outstanding war service cannot be overlooked.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

BACK HOME

Back Home—that little station
On the railroad anywhere,
And I reckon that the nation
Has ten thousand and to spare.
But sometimes I get a-thinkin'
Of that little old home town,
And I find my eyes a-winkin'
And the tears a-runnin' down.

Back Home—just friendly people,
And just streets and roads and stores,
But the little old church steeple
And the court house tower was y'ores;
Dusky twilight seemed some longer,
Moon shone brighter I should say,
And the handshakes was some stronger
When a feller went away.

Back Home—ripe apples quicker
In the summer on the trees,
And the shadders layin' thicker
With the softest kind o' breeze
Stirrin' in the fields of clover,
And the earth and sky and air
Made you feel just glad all over
To be well and livin' there.

Back Home—the skies seemed bluer,
Than all other you may find,
Hearts seemed kinder, friendships truer,
And the whole world seemed so kind.
Yes, there's just a bit of sadness
When I wish that I could share
All that well-rememberd gladness—
With the heart I brought from there.

CLUBWOMEN MEET AT CHAUTAUQUA CONVENTION

Brightest Minds of Nation Assemble at Feminine Gathering

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., June 20.—Representatives of 2,000,000 women in the United States met here today to discuss all topics affecting women and children.

The brightest minds in the women movement in the United States were present today when the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs went into session. It is expected that 15,000 women will attend the sessions.

Among the chief matters before the convention will be the problems of reforming the movies and making war on billboards. Other subjects include plans for buying and establishing natitonal headquarters in Washington, D. C.; simplifying business methods, and deciding on policies and legislation for the next administration.

The biennial election of national officers will also be held. Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis is candidate for re-election without opposition, following a two years' administration during which 750 new clubs have joined the Federation; a contract for $100,000 headquarters in Washington has been entered into; and cumbersom departments of work have been simplified.

Other candidates for office are Mrs. W. S. Jennings of Florida, candidate for re-election to the office of first vice-president; Mrs. George Plummer of Chicago, second vice-president; Mrs. James E. Hays of Georgiafi recording secretary; Mrs. Wallace T. Perham of Montana, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Florence Floore of Texas, treasurer.

Being an "off year" in elections it is not thought that other names will be written in on the ticket. A director from each state to serve on the national board will also be elected.

Two important reports will be those from newly created national committees, that of international relations, of which Mrs. Horace Mann Tower of Washington City is chairman, and of Indian welfare by Mrs. H. A. Atwood of California, chairman.

International evening will be a new feature of the biennial. Count Ilya Tolstoy will represent Russia. An international conference during which the general federation hopes to work out a plan whereby 'women as a working power' in the eight great nations may correct friendship through federation which will have for its aim the maintenance of permanent peace and the welfare of women and children in every land.

It is believed that if Mrs. Winter is re-elected, and there seems little doubt of this that she will reappoint to office the chairmen of the six great national departments of work, as follows: American citizenship, Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, Austin, Tex.; applied education, Mrs. John D. Sherman, Chicago; fine arts, Mrs. Rose S. Berry, Berkeley, Cal.; public welfare, Mrs. Elmer Blair, New York; legislation, Mrs. Edward Franklin White, Indianapolis; press and publicity, Mrs. Lessie Stringfellow Read of Fayette, Ark.

One of the chief features of the convention will be the program on international relations, which will be presented under the chairmanship of Mrs. Horace Mann Tower, on June 23.

Theodore Burton, member of the committee on foreign affairs, U. S. House of Representatives, will open the program. His subject will be "The Growing Importance of America's Foreign Relations."

Dr. L. S. Rowe, director of the General Aan-American union, will speak on "Pan-American Relations."

The program will follow a morning conference on "Influence of Women on International Relations," participated in by representatives from eight foreign countries including Madame Jamie C. Deveyra, wife of the U. S. Commissioner from the Philippine islands; Miss Nellie Scanlan of New Zealand; Mrs. P. C. Chang of China; Mrs. Gudrun Lochen Drewson of Norway; Madame Crouitch, wife of the minister representing the Serbs, Croates and Slovenes; Madame Vadela, representing Pan-American women — England, France, Italy and Russia will also have representatives present.

One of the features of the session will be the press conference, on Friday, June 23, when addresses will be delivered by leading press associations and newspaper representatives.

Speeches and discussion during the ten days will touch such subjects as international relations, conservation of natural resources, art, music, highways, citizenship, home economics, education, literature, forestry, disarmament, soldier rehabilitation, public welfare, prison labor, social hygiene, child welfare, waterways, bird protection, civil service and workmen's compensation.

These clubwomen are interested in babies—in good babies. One entire afternoon, June 29, will be devoted to plans by which undernourished children may be made plump and well and to other features of home demonstration work. "Milk for Children," "Milk for the Family" and "Food for the Family" will be subjects of discussion by experts and of exhibits placed by the dairy division, U. Sfl Bureau of Animal Husbandry.

Jessie M. Hoover, milk utilization specialist, U. S. bureau, will outline the proposed educational campaign. Miss Agnes Ellen Harris, N. S. department of agriculture and state deferation home demonstration directors from 38 states will be present to take part in the round table. Martha van Renselaer of the New York state college of agriculture and others will speak.

Milton Danziger of the U. S. Relations service, Washington, will discuss boys.

What provisions are being made in your state to carry out the Shappard-Towner act for the benefit of mothers and children? What is your state program for child health and welfare with which clubwomen can co-operate? Are there programs in your state for health and welfare in rural children? Are women appointed on state and local boards dealing with children?

These are a few of the many questions to be asked state child welfare chairmen at the child welfare conference to be held Monday afternoon, June 26. Mrs. Elmer Blair of New York, national chairman of public welfare, chairman of child welfare, presiding.

The women of the general federation have invited many prominent men in all business and professional lines to disbuss the problems mutually interesting to men and women.

HI SCHOOL P. T. A. AIDS STUDENT BODY

One of the pleasant incidents of the honor assembly Tuesday at Glendale High, was the reading of a letter from the treasurer of the High School Parent-Teacher association, enclosing a check of $20 for the student body to be applied on the motion picture machine it is trying to purchase. It was received with great aplause.

MEDAL OF HONOR MEN ENDORSE BRINKOP

Sergt. Katz of Cal. Forwards Signed Resolution to Fellow Heroes

It is a well-known fact the most prized decoration among all nations is the Congressional Medal of Honor given by the United States to only the bravest of its defenders. And it is most natural that those men who have been so honored should keep in close touch with each other and should take a strong interest in all that former comrades may be doing.

In the famous 91st division only four of these medals were awarded. When it is considered the number of engagements in which this division participated and the countless deeds of heroism performed by individual soldiers, some conception of the choiceness of the award can be obtained.

Of the four men who received the Congressional Medal of Honor, only three are now alive—the fourth having died in the performance of the very act which won him this coveted distinction. Among the three is Sergt. Phillip C. Katz, who has recently been named by Governor Stephens to represent California as the state's greatest hero.

That Katz does not forget those who fought with him is evidenced by a letter just received by Capt. Walter Brinkop, who is out for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. Acting on behalf of the holders of the congressional medal, Katz forwards the following resolution, passed by all holders of the medal living in this section of the country:

"We, the holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor of the United States, in California, hereby endorse our friend Walter Brinkop for the Republican nomination for the office of state treasurer. We do this in appreciation of his long and tireless efforts to promote the welfare of the ex-service men generally, and the disabled men especially. We believe him to be fully qualified for the office from his years in the financial business, and his upright and unquestioned integrity, and we urge the people of California to support him to the limit in the coming election."

According to Brinkop this endorsement is most highly prized, coming as it does from former comrades who are outstanding figures in the late war.

Be patriotic this year, above all years. Celebrate the Fourth of July. Fireworks at 52 S. Raymond avenue. Best assortment in the city of Pasadena.—Adv.
